AUGUST IS NATIONAL IMMUNIZATION AWARENESS MONTH

BALTIMORE, August 18, 2015 — Immunizations help prevent dangerous and sometimes deadly diseases. To stay protected against serious illnesses like the flu, measles, and pneumonia, adults need to get their shots – just like kids do.

National Immunization Awareness Month is a great time to promote vaccines and remind family, friends, and coworkers to stay up to date on their shots. To help keep our community safe, MedChi is proudly participating in National Immunization Awareness Month.

Everyone age 6 months and older needs a seasonal flu shot every year. Other shots work best when they are given at certain ages. Talk to your doctor, pediatrician or nurse to make sure that everyone in the family gets the shots they need.

- For children age 6 or younger, make sure you find out which shots your child needs from your pediatrician.
- Adults need a booster shot every 10 years to help protect against tetanus and diphtheria.
- Speak with friends and family members about how vaccines aren't just for kids. People of all ages can get shots to protect them from serious diseases.
- Encourage people in your community to get the flu shot every year.
- Invite a doctor or nurse to speak to parents about why it's important for all kids to get vaccinated.

Dr. Tyler Cymet, President of MedChi, states “Shots can prevent serious diseases like the flu, measles, diphtheria, tuberculosis and rubella. It is also important to know which shots you need and when you need to get them. We can all use this month to raise awareness about vaccines and to evaluate whether or not we are up to date with our own vaccinations.”
