Presented by Jamaal Stafford and Julie Konovalov

Revamping Your Medical Practice to Thrive During COVID-19: Business and Legal Considerations has been developed to address various employment related policies and procedures that should be implemented in the healthcare practice to minimize the risk of employment litigation. The panel will provide strategies to improve total patient experience and discuss ways to increase revenues.

Jamaal Stafford is the founder and Managing Attorney of the Law Firm of J.W. Stafford, LLC. The law firm represents both employees and employers in employment law matters and defends healthcare professionals before their professional licensing boards. Jamaal has clerked for the Chief Judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals and has litigated complex cases on behalf of clients at top law firms, including DLA Piper, LLP.

Julia Konovalov is a co-founder of Medical Business Partners, a healthcare consulting company. Julia's passion lies in simplifying all the regulations and finding ways to increase revenues for physicians, so they can enjoy practicing medicine. She has over a decade of healthcare experience and has a long track record of improving revenue cycle management, providing staff and compliance training, and figuring out ways to enhance the total patient experience. Julia is active in the healthcare community and speaks at many medical and healthcare societies on ways to assist providers.
